

CHRISTENSEN ESTATE IN COURT

The Becker Brewing company has commenced an action in the district court against Nels C. Peterson, C. H. Hartog, Henry M. Steele, constable for Ogden precinct, and R. C. Mitchell to quiet title to certain real estate and also to enjoin the constable of Ogden precinct from executing a judgment against Peterson and in favor of Hartog, by attaching the real property.

It is said in the pleadings that the property in question is a residue of the estate of Peter Christensen, deceased, which was distributed to Nels C. Peterson and that a writ of attachment has been issued from the municipal court on a judgment given in favor of the defendant Hartog and against the defendant Nels C. Peterson. It is alleged that the distribution to Nels C. Peterson was erroneous and therefore that the real estate in question does not belong to him. The plaintiff claims an interest in the property and it desires that the title be quieted.

INVITATIONS ARE OUT

Invitations are being mailed to Ogden families asking them to attend the second illustrated lecture on the "Famous Mausoleums of the World and the Better Way," on Monday evening at the Orpheum theatre.

This lecture consists of a large number of stereoscopic views, many of which have never been shown in this country and which not only show the evolution of the mausoleum idea but also the progress of this reform movement in the eastern and middle western states in the method of human burial.

The lecture deals much with history and art and demonstrates more especially the necessity of greater sanitation in the disposal of the dead.

A recent press notice of the lecture declares, "Mr. Austin states vividly the whole truth when he says it is as important to the living as is any other vital subject." And another notice thus characterized the lecture, "There is no gruesome or unpleasant suggestion, but quite the contrary in every phase of his discussion of this much neglected civil subject." And still another notice reads, "Those who hear this lecture will be profitably and agreeably entertained." Tickets can be had for the asking at Culley's Drug store and The Baddon Pharmacy. A water color of the beautiful Mausoleum to be built in Ogden City cemetery can be seen in the following windows:

Wright & Sons, Dry Goods Co., Palmer & Hurst Dry Goods Co., Ogden Furniture & Carpet Co., First National bank.

DEMOCRATS WILL BEGIN ON TARIFF

Washington, Nov. 30.—Senator Simmons of North Carolina, who had charge of the Democratic tariff bills in the senate last session, and who may be chairman of the finance committee until March 4, said today he would urge that Democratic members of the finance committee and committee on ways and means get together early next week and begin work on the tariff measures to be considered at the extra session of congress.

Mr. Simmons said whether the tariff question should be taken up schedule by schedule or in a general bill, he was not prepared to say. He said, however, that he thought that a majority would want to take up the schedules separately using the bills introduced last session as examples.

Senator Simmons said there would be a caucus of Democrats next week when a plan of campaign would be agreed upon.

SECRETARY FISHER OUTLINES POLICY

Washington, Nov. 30.—Secretary Fisher today told representatives of San Francisco at the Hetch-Hetchy city hearing that he would require the city to take over the Spring Valley Water company of California before he would issue a permit allowing San Francisco to go into the Hetch-Hetchy valley for its water supply.

The secretary further declared that it would be an unwise and unsound public policy to grant a permit for a water supply to a government reservation as a return for a supply which already exists.

NEVADA TO JOIN WITH OGDEN FORCES

The people of the Humboldt valley in Nevada are with Ogden in the making of the auto road north of the lake the most popular route through the intermountain country, said E. M. Steninger, proprietor of the Free Press of Elko, Nev., in a talk with a Standard representative this morning.

Mr. Steninger says that great interest is being aroused throughout northern Nevada in the Ogden route and that even Reno, heretofore neutral and seemingly indifferent, is now co-operating with Elko, Winnemucca, Battle Mountain and other towns in making possible a good highway through the state, connecting with the north-of-the-lake road out of Ogden.

The Nevada good roads people complain that Box Elder county is slow in placing the road from Snowville to Montello in repair.

An engineer is now going over the road from Winnemucca east to recommend improvements to the Humboldt county commissioners and at Elko a development league has been formed to promote good roads and advertise the route.

ROW IN A POOL ROOM HEARD IN COURT

More than two hours were required this morning in police court to hear the case of the city against J. Toldo, charged with assaulting Fred Malm in a pool room under the office of the Western Union Telegraph. The complaint charged that Toldo struck Malm on the head with a billiard cue.

According to the stories told by the witnesses, Malm came to the pool room Thursday evening and began to play at one of the tables with a friend, Leslie Roberts. The cue ball was a red one and Malm asked the proprietor to give him a white one instead. In answer, the Jap said that he had no white cue ball and that the player could go elsewhere if he did not like the conditions. At this point, according to the witnesses, Malm swore at the proprietor, and Roy Woodbury, another player, said to the Jap that he would throw the young man out if he owned the place.

Malm became angered and invited Woodbury outside to fight, but the invitation was refused. The quarrel grew warmer and ended in Malm's receiving a blow on the head from the Jap and a blow in the nose from Woodbury. According to Woodbury, he did not strike Malm until he had been pushed in the chest and believed that he was about to be struck again. Toldo said that Malm had started the trouble and he had struck the young man when he believed that one of his patrons was about to be injured. Several witnesses were examined and nearly all told the same story.

Judge Reeder found the man guilty, but suspended sentence.

She also interested Director of Public Safety Porter of Philadelphia in the movement. She will agitate the matter in other big cities. She is the best fitted to handle juvenile offenders, for a woman has the motherly instinct that enables her to accomplish wonderful tasks."

Sheridan's "Debt of Honor."

A "debt of honor" story that may be worth recalling concerns that prince of debtors, Richard Brinsley Sheridan. One day a creditor came into Sheridan's room and found him seated before a table strewn with gold and notes.

"It's no use looking at that, my good fellow," said Sheridan, "that is all bespoken for debts of honor." "Very well," replied the tradesman, tearing his security and throwing it in the fire, "now mine is a debt of honor." "So it is, and must be paid at once," said Sheridan, and handed him the money.
